

I propose encouraging central banks to create publicly accessible central bank transparency portals to disclose key financial soundness indicators, along with significant enforcement actions concerning the banks under their supervision. This initiative would contribute to heightened transparency and accountability for both central banks and the banks they oversee.