Lower and more stable inflation since the target was introduced

The global financial crisis led to need for broader monetary policy tools

- Policy rate alone was not enough to attain objectives
 - Lower bound for policy rate – from interesting fact to reality
- Difficult for monetary policy to reach households and companies
- New tools:
 - Quantitative easing
 - Credit easing

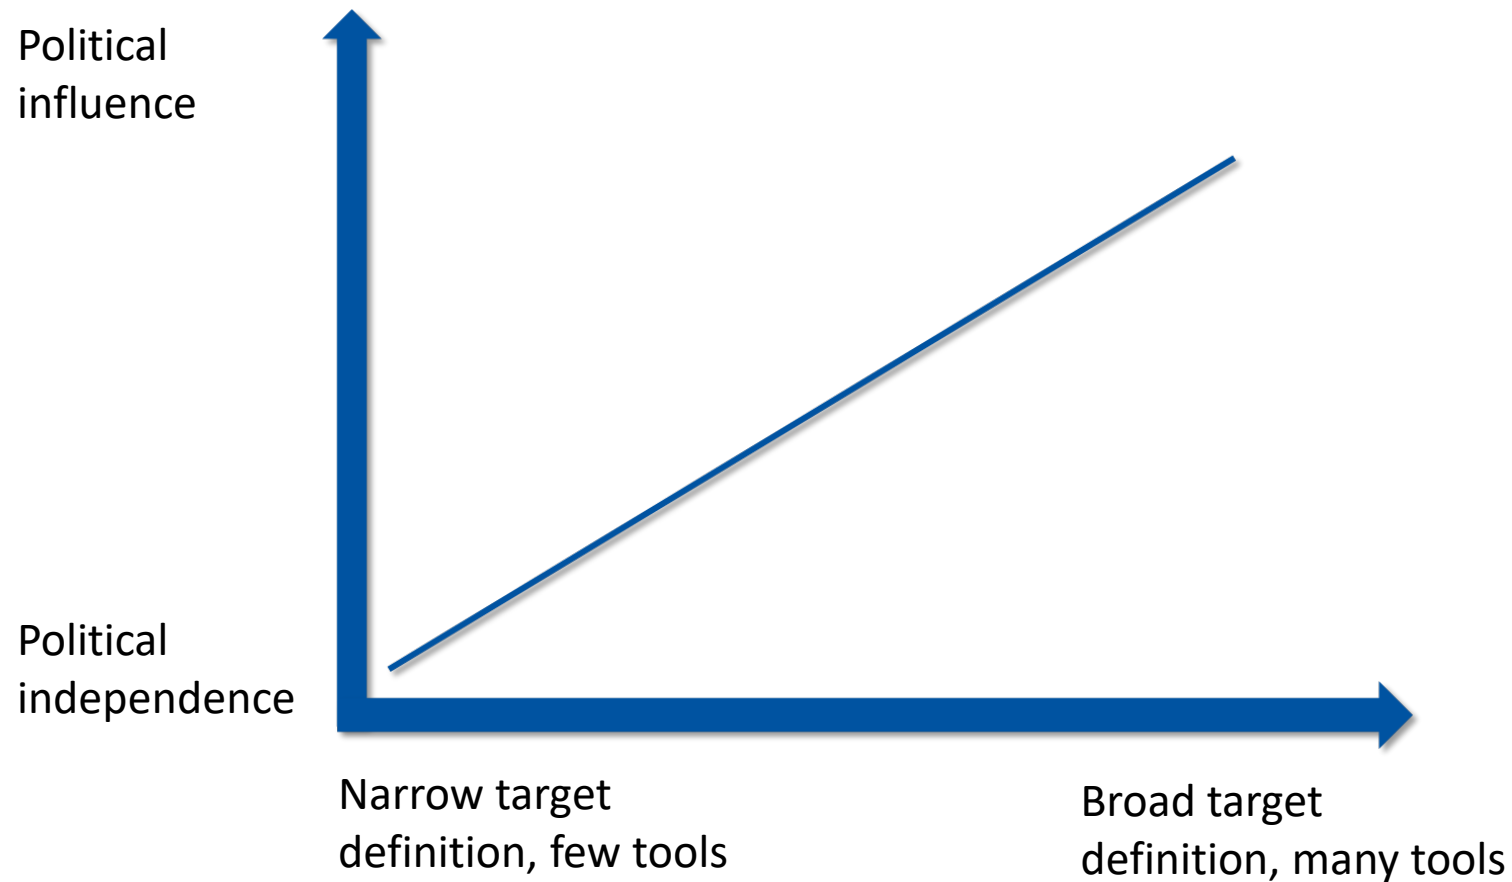

Important to also prevent inflation being too low

Central banks' mandate in focus

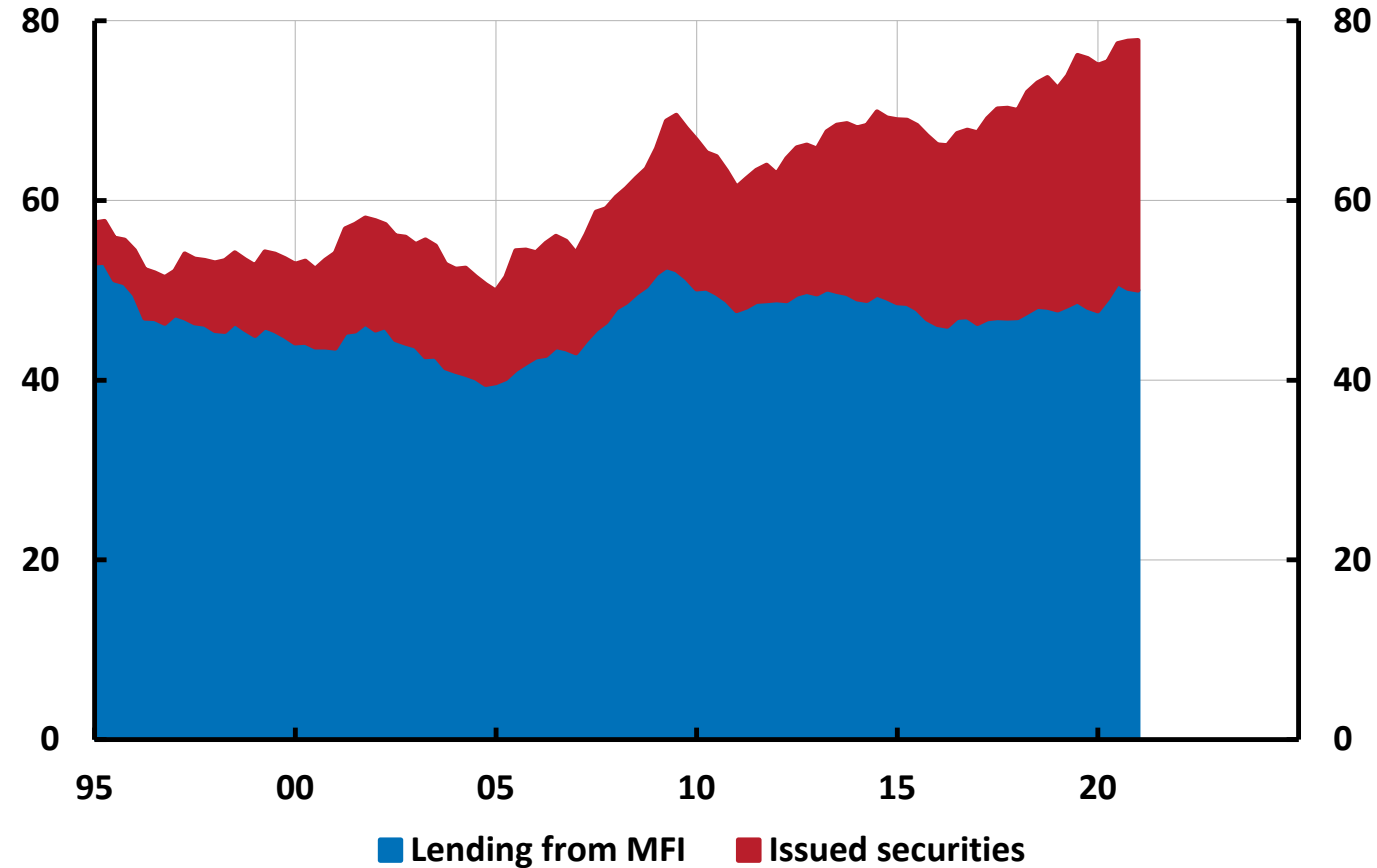

Pandemic outbreak spring 2020 illustrated importance of room for manoeuvre

- Huge uncertainty in spring of 2020
- The sharp economic downturn and financial turbulence made it necessary to quickly and emphatically
 - keep interest rates low
 - maintain the credit supply

More companies financing themselves via securities

Note. Includes securities borrowing in both Swedish kronor and foreign currency.

Necessary to act quickly to calm fixed-income market

Note. Percentage points. Yields on covered bonds, corporate bonds and government bonds are zero coupon rates calculated using the Nelson-Siegel method. Corporate bonds refer to companies with a high credit rating. Municipal bonds are issued by Kommuninvest i Sverige AB. Broken line marks 11 March 2020, same day the WHO declared COVID-19 to be a pandemic.

Proposal for new Sveriges Riksbank Act too restrictive with regard to monetary policy toolbox

Our instrument independence – being able to choose tools to attain our objectives – has been essential in alleviating the effects of the crisis and contributing to good economic developments.

More monetary policy tools – the effects go in the right direction but are difficult to quantify

Many tools

Purchases of interest-bearing securities

Loans to companies via banks

Repo rate 0%

Increased access to safe and liquid assets

Positive effect on inflation

Important to facilitate democratic scrutiny of monetary policy

- Our current framework reflects a clear target, strong independence and openness
- The Riksbank's toolbox needs to be developed over time
- Large room for manoeuvre is needed in monetary policy
- Freedom with responsibility – an important task for the Riksbank to explain what we do and how it contributes to attaining our statutory objectives

Thank you!
